THE OCEAN BEACH NEWS

A Booster for Ocean Beach, Point Loma, Mission Bay and Mission Beach

FOURTEENTH YEAR, No. 37

OCEAN BEACH CALIFORNIA

New Home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Herbst

The comfortable, pleasing and modern home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Herbst, 4603 Brighton avenue, is pictured above. It is a five room frame-stucco construction built in its entirety by the Denstedt Co., of 3761 Fifth Ave.

Mr. Herbst is a mechanic at North Island and has been a resident here for about fifteen years, an example of the substantial type of home owner who has decided that Ocean Beach is one of the finest places of all to live, and that no better investment can be found than one's own home.

About one hundred homes are being built in the Ocean Beach area so far this year with the total likely to reach another fifty before 1937 rolls round. Most of these homes are frame-stucco construction as the above, some larger to suit the needs of the owners but none more complete as regards modern conveniences.

La Jolla Gets $19,000. City Hall Branch

Last week preliminary work started at La Jolla on a branch city hall at estimated cost of $18,919.00, while Ocean Beach is promised an improvement to cost less than one-fourth this amount.

We have double the population here at Ocean Beach but only one-fourth the influence apparently to get the things we need so badly.

When all these politicians are out talking to us next Monday night, wouldn't it be a good thing to impress upon them that what we want is a breakwater and jetty built from the Mission bay channel. This will give us boat and yacht outlet to the ocean and a protected beach to stop rip-tides and build a sandy beach to attract the thousands of summer visitors who are looking for this pleasurable pastime.

There was a time too when the politicians promised that we should have a good fishing pier—when they wanted our votes, but failed to see its necessity after their election.

If we are not mighty persistent we will get nothing.

MANY SMASHED CARS TO BE SEEN AT LOCAL GARAGE

A true example of what happens to the reckless driver was seen by the News reporter at the Ocean Beach Garage Wednesday and others may see the same cars and take due warning.

The worst wreck was the new auto of T. A. Brackett who met head-on with a street car and almost completely demolished the auto and killed the driver.

Several others had been towed in, one of the worst being the auto of William L. Bogen, 319 Brooks ave., who while teaching a woman to drive Tuesday evening crashed into a telephone pole near intersection of Guizot and Voltaire sts. The front right side was badly smashed, windshield broken and other damage done.

The Ocean Beach Garage has become a busy place during the last year and the proprietors last week put in a fully stocked cabinet of almost every conceivable automobile part that an owner might need. Cables, gaskets, timers, axles, fan belts, points and just about any part that would ordinarily give out or be needed on a car.

NEW LUNCH STAND CORNER VOLTAIRE AND BACON

Lloyd's Lunch is the name of the new quick lunch business recently opened by E. E. Lloyd at 4999 Voltaire street.

Mrs. Lloyd assisted by Mrs. Chas. Burke are conducting the business for Mr. Lloyd and the women say they sure have had enough experience to satisfy the inner man with tasty victuals.

Lambs Quitting Grocery Business

Walter and Mrs. Lamb, proprietors of Lamb's Market, 1919 Bacon street, this week closed out their grocery stock after three years of successful business.

A short time ago they sold their store lease to Robert Sakellariou, who has made application to open at the same stand in "off sale" beer and wine trade.

Mr. Lamb upon his retirement from the navy started his grocery business on a small scale in a room rented from Bank of America, then when A. Cahill built next door he rented his larger store room where he has been an energetic merchant. During the winter Mr. and Mrs. Lamb built themselves a splendid new home on Narragansett avenue and they now hope to get some real pleasure out of living, with Walter spending part of his time looking after a few chickens in the back yard.

News Welcomes Items From New Readers.

To our many new subscribers we wish to say howdy and greetings.

We endeavor to publish all the local news of our community, that we think fit to print, and welcome personal and social items from you and your families. When you have visitors let us know, or a wedding, a new baby, or have an interesting trip to tell about.

The little personal items of yourself and your friends are just as interesting to your neighbors as what happened in Washington or Chicago.

The phone No. is BV-3157.

NOTICE TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEMBERS

Members of Ocean Beach chamber of commerce will combine their meeting on July 13 with the Allied Civic association, in the Woman's clubhouse at 7:30 p. m.

Candidates for the various offices have been asked to come and give their qualifications.

CHILDREN'S HOME MAK- ING DRIVE FOR JAM

The San Diego Children's Home at 16th and Ash street are making their annual drive for jams and jellies to give the kiddies a spread occasionally.

The News office, 1922 Bacon St., has been named as the Ocean Beach receiving station, and we shall be pleased to accept one or half a dozen glasses or jars of jam or jelly from your shelves.

This drive has been made annually for a number of years by the home which is a publicly supported institution. They are asking for 500 jars from all the city.

News Puts Fifty New Symphonies at Expo Subscribers On List Will Start Tonight

During the past two weeks, barring holidays and Sundays, Pat Coghlan has been out soliciting new subscribers to the Ocean Beach News, with very good results. While Mr. Coghlan did not know our section very well yet he came well recommended and has patience and dependability and we are very well satisfied with the work he is doing for the News.

Every property owner of the beach should cooperate with the local paper which puts forth every effort to build a substantial and better community.

Every parent should have the paper in their home for school news is carried each week from both the elementary and high school during the time they are in session.

Every business house and tradesman in the Ocean Beach area should carry an advertisement, professional card or directory ad, in each issue of the paper, this reminder to the citizens being "an invitation" to see them for whatever they might need before going elsewhere to trade.

Following are new subscribers secured in ten days previous to this issue:

R. E. Cooley
H. McCullough
L. E. Ruggles
Mrs. H. A. DeBoer
Charles R. Bartlett

V.F.W. BAZAAR AND CARD PARTY

Post 2415 V.F.W. auxiliary of Ocean Beach will hold their annual bazaar and card party at 5008 Newport avenue, Saturday, July 18th. There will be a food sale in the morning and card party in the evening at 8 p.m. Bridge and 500.

FIRE STATION FAVORED ABOVE OCEAN BEACH

Needs of additional fire fighting facilities are to be studied by the city manager and fire chief and findings are to be reported to the council, it was decided yesterday afternoon when Councilman Harry Warburton proposed a new station for the College Way district. Manager Flack stated that a new station to serve Ocean Beach and Point Loma is needed badly and that the location should be changed to a more central location above Ocean Beach. Councilman Ray Wansley followed with a statement that both fire and police protection were needed on the bay-side of Point Loma. The council then directed the manager to make a survey of both police and fire protection in all parts of the city.

With attendance records zooming toward the two million mark, the California Pacific International Exposition here enters its mid-summer season with daily event-crammed programs of wide diversity and appeal.

Symphonies under the stars again will be presented through the courtesy of the Ford Motor company. First in the brilliant series of concerts will be presented July 10 in the Ford Music bowl by the 86-piece San Diego symphony under the magic baton of Nino Marcelli. Havrah Hubbard, famed music critic, will announce the programs, 32 of which will be offered with the final concert scheduled for August 9.

Following the San Diego group will be the noted San Francisco symphony, conducted by Alfred Hertz. 14 concerts will be offered by this distinguished group in the period from August 11 to 23. The symphonies will be broadcast once a week over a coast-to-coast network.

Entertainers of national prominence have been engaged as free attractions throughout the balance of the Exposition period, which ends Sept. 9.

Cavemen and cavewomen from the Oregon coast will converge on San Diego for the celebration of Oregon day at the Exposition on July 14, while present and former residents of Pennsylvania will enjoy their "day" July 11. Thousands of paterfamilias and educators will join the observance of the Congress of Parent Teachers association day on July 12.

With the Exposition as the major magnet tourist travel to California and the Pacific coast will reach unprecedented peaks this summer, according to the unanimous reports of travel authorities throughout the country. Contributing factors in this marked increase in westbound traffic are the recent payment of the veterans' bonus, which placed millions of dollars into circulation, and the cool sea breezes and beaches of the Pacific, made doubly alluring this year by the unusually hot weather in other parts of the nation.

BIRTHS

Born, June 24, to Mr. and Mrs. James E. Atkinson, Jr., 4678 Saratoga avenue, a son.

To Mr. and Mrs. William G. Hersum, 4637 Lotus street, a daughter, July 2nd at Mercy hospital.

To Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Vanderpool a baby girl at their home, 4720 Long Branch avenue, July 8.

Rev. James H. Hughes left yesterday for Colorado Springs where he will give some lectures to a convocation of ministers of various denominations. He will be absent for several weeks.

THE OCEAN BEACH WOMAN'S CLUB

The Ocean Beach Woman's club will give a benefit card party Friday afternoon and evening, July 17 at the club rooms on Abbott street. The afternoon party will be a desert bridge at 1 p. m., and the evening party will be at 8 p. m. Mrs. Hyda Cook is chairman for the afternoon and Mrs. Dora Bingham chairman for the evening assisted by a capable committee. The public is most cordially invited, the summer visitors at the beach are given a special invitation.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Von Hoene of Williamsburg, Ia., southeast section near Iowa City, have returned home after a two weeks visit here at the home of Mr. Von Hoene's cousin Carl Schroder of W. Point Loma blvd. The visitors enjoyed themselves sightseeing and fishing and believe there are great possibilities here to draw the tourists and pleasure seekers, though they especially mentioned the need of a fishing and pleasure pier with a channel outlet from Mission bay to the ocean.

DR. FELT RETURNS FROM WASHINGTON AND EAST

Myron Insko was chairman of Kiwanis luncheon meeting Wednesday with the time for a speaker given to the president, Dr. Frank R. Felt, who recently returned from Kiwanis International convention at Washington, D. C.

Dr. Felt reporting the meeting as one of the best, if not the best balanced convention, he had ever attended. He said the gathering was held in the auditorium of the D.A.R. hall and that no particular group dominated the convention, that it had very fine speakers, the musical part of the program introduced some very fine vocal choruses; and other entertainment was just as pleasing. Boys and girls work was again stressed and discussed from various angles as well as better citizenship for all Americans.

Herb Mohan was back at the club after several weeks absence and Frank Harmon of La Jolla was a visitor.

NEW PROPRIETOR TAKES CHARGE OF CANTEN

R. Nagel, better known as "Rud" by his many friends, July 1st acquired ownership of the Canteen at 1925 Bacon street, buying fixtures and equipment, as well as the lease from Charlie Nelson.

Mr. Nagel has been at the Canteen for a year or more as an employee and well known to most of the patrons. He retired as Navy chief rigger in 1922, then served an additional 3 years in fleet reserve.

Mr. and Mrs. Nagel for two years past have been living on Del Monte avenue but as they acquired lease to all of the Canteen building have now moved to one of its apartments upstairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Nelson will leave later in the month by auto for New York state, and will gypsy along the way, having purchased a modern trailer and expect to be all summer reaching the east coast where Mrs. Nelson has relatives. Grandpa Carl Nelson expects to sail for Hawaii on July 18 to remain for a year or two.

NATIONAL CITY NEWS OWNERS SELL THEIR PAPER

Mr. and Mrs. George Allen, owners and editors of the National City News the past ten years, last week sold their paper and equipment to Joe Vurgason, publisher of the National City Reporter.

Mr. Vurgason, we are told, will conduct a commercial job printing business from his old stand and at the News office will continue the publication of the National City News.

The Allens have worked hard and we believe they are entitled to a good rest, then plan to travel and visit friends and associations of former years.

FOR RENT SIGNS—5c and 10c at The Ocean Beach News.

Candidates Will Address Meeting Monday Nite

Fourteen, and probably more, candidates for preference in the August primary, will address an invitational meeting of the Allied Civic association at the Woman's club in Ocean Beach at 7:30 o'clock Monday night according to George Spier, chairman of the political committee. Other members of the committee are Cal. H. Burns and James Beck.

Among those candidates who have accepted the association's invitation to speak and explain their positions on various civic matters affecting the Ocean Beach district are, Ed Izac, John J. Brennan, Ed. Hield and Ed. Sample for Congress; Judge Gordon Thompson, incumbent and Harry Clark for Superior Court department number six; Judge Clarence Harden, incumbent, Superior Court department number one; Hon. Ralph Wallace, incumbent; Major Bowers, Mrs. Darling and J. Baylor for the assembly, seventy-ninth district; and Ed. Hastings, incumbent, Walter Bellon, James Parsons, for supervisor, first district, San Diego county; Others have been asked to attend and speak and the committee extends an invitation to any candidate not yet contacted to notify them of his intention to attend the meeting.

The public is invited.

BAND STAND WILL NOT BE MOVED AT PRESENT

Plans to move the band stand from corner Cable street to a point nearer the ocean this week did not materialize as the committee, it is said, were not able to secure the consent of property owners near foot of Newport avenue, on which to place the stand.

LAKEVIEW HAS NEW NEWS- PAPER TO BOOST COMMUNITY

No. 1, Vol. 1, of The Lakeside Farmer came to our desk this week, stating the next issue of their paper, published for the interests of Lakeside's trading area, would be published July 17 and weekly thereafter. Timothy Brownhill is editor and publisher. He was located at Ramona several years ago and sold the Ramona Sentinel on account of poor health.

We wish him all the luck there is in store for the small town newspaper man of today. Sometimes it's good and sometimes not so good, but usually we get enough to keep the wolf from the door.

DEMOCRATIC NEWSPAPER

A strictly Democratic newspaper, The Progressive Democrat, has been announced as issuing its first edition today, July 10, with Francis R. Gleeson, publisher, and Nicholas W. Hacker, managing editor.

Offices have been established at 1017 First avenue, San Diego.

Mr. Gleeson says: "We seek to promote the cause of Democracy with an honesty of purpose that can be strengthened and made successful with the cooperation of our many Democratic voters."

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Democrats Renominate President Roosevelt—Drought Again Causes Crop Destruction — International Conference Considers Mediterranean Problems.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

PRESIDENT FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT was renominated by the Democratic convention in Philadelphia in a demonstration of great popular acclaim.

President Roosevelt

The convention unanimously adopted a strong New Deal platform and voted the abolition of the historic two-thirds rule.

The sessions were marked with extreme enthusiasm. Party harmony and a determination to stand militantly on the administration's record in the past three years and present a united front in the coming campaign characterized the convention.

The abolition of the two-thirds rule for the nomination of candidates was one of the significant achievements. This rule, which had been in use for more than 100 years, was superseded by the adoption of the rules committee's report recommending that at future conventions only a bare majority be required for nomination. While some southern and the eastern and western states opposed abrogation, they were reconciled to it by the committee's recommendation that changes be made in the apportionment of delegates.

The platform pledged continuance of soil conservation, benefit payments to farmers, a sound currency, a balanced budget and a constitutional amendment if necessary, to achieve the party's broad social program. It praised the accomplishments of the New Deal in a preamble, declaring that it planned to continue them in the interest of the nation. The platform's keynote was that the Roosevelt administration has put and will keep the nation "on the road the recovery and prosperity."

Regarding the Constitution, the platform declared that while the Republican platform proposes to meet national problems by action of the separate states, the Democratic party recognizes that minimum wages, maximum hours, child labor, monopolistic and unfair business practices, dust storms, drought and floods could not be handled by states. It stated:

"If these problems cannot be effectively solved by legislation within the Constitution, we shall seek such clarifying amendments as will assume to the legislatures of the several states and to the congress of the United States each within its proper jurisdiction, the power to enact those laws which the state and federal legislatures within their respective spheres shall find necessary, in order adequately to regulate commerce, protect public health and safety and safeguard economic security. Thus we propose to maintain the letter and spirit of the Constitution."

In addition to soil conservation and benefit payments, the farm plank pledged the Democrats to financing share-croppers and tenants in buying lands; favored commodity loans on farm surpluses and retirement of ten million acres of submarginal land from production and rural rehabilitation.

Reiterating the "good neighbor" policy, the foreign relations plank reaffirmed the party's neutrality program pledged to keep the nation out of foreign entanglements. It reasserted the reciprocal tariff policy, but demanded "adequate" protection to farmers and manufacturers against unfair foreign competition.

Denouncing monopolies and concentration of economic power, the platform declared that the administration would "vigorously and fearlessly enforce the criminal and civil provisions of the existing anti-trust laws."

Other planks pledged: Expansion of the social security program; continuance of rural electrification; protection of the rights of labor to bargain collectively; extension of federal housing projects; just treatment of war veterans and their dependents; extension of the merit system through classified civil service; freedom of speech, press, radio, religion and assembly; protection of public works projects to aid unemployment; opposition to Communism and "the menace of concealed Fascism."

THE specter of drought stalked in the Northwest. Damage to crops on heat-parched farms in South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana caused great concern and recalled the disastrous drought conditions of two years ago.

Railroads serving the drought areas agreed to place emergency freight rates into effect on live stock shipments to other grazing areas. Wheat and corn crops have suffered severe damage, reports indicate.

In Washington, a relief program for the drought-stricken northwest states was mapped out by Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. Work relief projects designed to give work at once to 5,000 farmers in the Dakotas and parts of Wyoming and Montana, whose crop lands have been laid waste for the seventh consecutive year, were planned.

In the Middle West the fact that June of 1936 has been cooler than the same month two years ago has offset the serious effects of lack of rain. Figures on June rainfall for 1936 and 1934 compiled by Nat C. Murray, crop authority of Chicago, showed that Ohio had 39 per cent of normal this year and 90 per cent in 1934; Minnesota 46 per cent in 1936 and 32 per cent in 1934; Missouri 26 per cent in 1936 and 62 per cent in 1934; and Kansas 37 per cent in 1936 and 65 per cent in 1934.

Added to the seriousness of the drought situation was a plague of grasshoppers that swept over eastern Nebraska, threatening to destroy hundreds of square miles of crops. The swarm was reported to be 100 miles long. In spots the insects were said to be so numerous that they hid the sun as they passed over valuable farm lands.

MEETING in Montreaux, Switzerland, an international conference sought settlement of military and naval problems in the Mediterranean. The conference had been called by the powers as a result of Turkey's request to fortify the Dardanelles, which were demilitarized under the Lausanne treaty of 1923.

The possible threat of Russia's growing naval strength caused an alignment of the British and Japanese. Japan announced it was willing to accept any limitation on Japanese warships authorized to enter the Black sea, providing similar restrictions were placed on Russian warships leaving it.

Russia demanded free westward passage of warships and submarines out of the Black sea through the Dardanelles, adding she was unable to see why other powers not bordering on this body of water desired unlimited passage to it. Because of her mutual assistance pact with the Soviet, France was expected to side with Russia.

REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM LEMKE of North Dakota announced that he would run for the Presidency as candidate of a new political group known as the Union party.

Rep. Lemke

Mr. Lemke made public a 15-point platform embodying demands for financing of farm mortgages, old age security, a living wage for all workers, limitation on individual incomes, the establishment of a central bank, the issuance by congress of all currency and its regulation of the value of all the money.

Plans were made for the new party to hold a national convention some time during August in Cleveland.

Mr. Lemke said the Union party has the support of farm unions, labor, the National Union for Social Justice established by Father Coughlin, the Townsend old age pension movement and "all other liberals who have been driven from the old parties."

Mr. Lemke was co-author with Senator Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota of a $3,000,000,000 farm mortgage refinancing bill defeated in the house of representatives.

ARTHUR W. CUTTEN, who achieved spectacular wealth as a grain trader, died of a heart attack in his home in Chicago. He was sixty-five years old.

An exponent of individualism, Mr. Cutten went his way alone in the grain market, playing his "hunches" against the field. In 1924, he made a profit estimated at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 in a corner on the corn market. He repeated his success with a coup in the wheat market the following year.

With a group of associates, he entered the stock market in 1928 and during the boom months made millions of dollars.

Most of his life Mr. Cutten was a "long" trader, who bought for the rise in the market, but following the crash, he is said to have become a "bear" or short seller. His operations as a bear in the Chicago Board of Trade brought his suspension by the grain futures administration for two years, but he won a reversal of this ruling in the United States Supreme court.

STRIKES and industrial difficulties continued to harass France, although their ultimate solution was forecast in a conciliatory attitude assumed by the new "popular front" government toward the French chambers of commerce. Representatives of the chambers of commerce received assurance from Premier Leon Blum that no further manufacturing plants would be tied up by "folded arms" strikers, whose number at their peak reached approximately 1,000,000 employees.

In the meantime a strike of sailors in Marseilles was settled after a three-day refusal to work, when the ship-owners capitulated to the strikers' demands. Fifty ships were affected by the walkout. The sailors demanded a 40-hour week, vacations with pay and bedsheets on their bunks.

THE death of Bernhard W. von Buelow, secretary of state for foreign affairs in the Hitler cabinet, removed one of the most skilled of Europe's diplomats. Von Buelow, who was fifty-one, was an expert on the League of Nations and gave his country valuable counsel when Germany began to consider rejoining the league. He was noted as a studious and hard-working official, with a vast amount of detailed information always readily available.

A "blueblood" of the German nobility, the diplomat was a nephew of the late Prince Bernhard von Buelow, imperial chancellor. He was one of the first of the German nobles to associate himself with the republican regime after the collapse of the empire in 1918. Although different in background from Hitler, he nevertheless enjoyed the chancellor's confidence.

In Russia, Maxim Gorky, early foe of the czars who became a hero of the Soviet regime and its outstanding writer, died of influenza at the age of sixty-eight. Although not a member of the Communist party, Gorky had a preeminent position in Soviet life and was a former member of the central executive committee. Moscow honored him with a public funeral and interment in the Kremlin in a niche facing Lenin's tomb.

THE Seventy-fourth congress adjourned after a session lasting five and a half months during which it appropriated nearly $10,000,000,000 and was faced by some unexpected legislative complications.

In the closing hours the emergency tax bill which is expected to produce $800,000,000 in revenue was passed. Supreme court invalidation of the AAA and Guffey coal bills and the passage of the cash soldiers' bonus over the President's veto upset the budget plans and made such a bill necessary.

Although it was passed by the house, the amended Guffey coal bill designed to remove the objections of the Supreme court failed of passage in the senate. Similarly, the Wagner slum housing bill, which had passed the senate, failed in the house.

Larger than normal appropriations for governmental activities were passed. The bonus, farm payments, relief and the greatest national defense program in peace time history helped swell the total.

Funds for continuing the present relief program were voted; the public works revolving fund was amended to permit more heavy construction projects. But congress failed to approve the Florida ship canal and Passamaquoddy tide dam.

Invalidation of the AAA brought a revised and expanded soil conservation and domestic allotment act; the rural electrification administration and electric farm and home authority were both placed on a permanent basis; the Commodity Credit corporation was expanded; two flood control bills were passed. Labor received attention through the Walsh-Healy bill dealing with working conditions on government contracts. A compromise ship subsidy bill was rushed through in the closing hours. Financial legislation included expansion of the jurisdiction of SEC. Important among business legislation was the Patman bill amending the Clayton anti-trust act regarding price discrimination.

A number of important bills failed of enactment. Among these were the Pettigill long and short hauls bill, stockyard regulation, Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage bill, and bills on the 30-hour week, extension of the railroad co-ordinator's tenure, anti-war profits, alien deportation, enlargement of the federal trade commission's power and treasury agency service.

FOLLOWING the lead of Great Britain, the United States formally revoked all sanctions imposed against Italy during the recent Italo-Ethiopian conflict. A proclamation by President Roosevelt declared all previous communications dealing with the sale of munitions of war, loans and travel by Americans on Italian ships was revoked.

Although the sanctions were against both Italy and Ethiopia, in practical application they were used only against Italy, since the United States did not supply the African nation with any war materials and the empire of Haile Selassie had no ships of its own.

The French cabinet agreed to abide by any action which the League of Nations may take in cancelling sanctions against Italy.

The British government's decision to abandon sanctions was defended in an address by Prime Minister Baldwin as the only alternative which would prevent a suicidal war plunging western civilization into "barbarous anarchy."

Baldwin asserted: "We think it is right to drop sanctions because they are useless and ineffective."

"There is only one way to alter the course of events as they have thus far taken place. That is by going to war. I do not know a single nation in Europe that is prepared for that. I would not cast my vote for that course."

A BATTLE to recover all the procuring taxes paid to the government under the invalidated AAA was undertaken by the "big four" of the packing industry—Swift and Company, Armour and Company, Wilson and Company and the Cudahy Packing company.

Having won back $45,000,000 when the AAA was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court the packing industry has decided to attempt to recover from the government more than $200,000,000 paid before injunctions against the tax were granted and subsequent payments imposed.

For the Style-Conscious Little Girls

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT IS with ever increasing enthusiasm that designers are yielding to the urge of catering to the needs and fancies of style-conscious little girls.

The story of the modern child's wardrobe resolves itself into many chapters dealing with all phases of fashion. Beginning with simple, novel and amusing beach, swim and playtime togs and cunning sun suits, the plot carries on through thrilling adventures in the realm of smart school and dressy daytime clothes reaching a grand and glorious climax in way of entrancing pretty-party frocks that make every little girl look like a fairy princess of story book lore.

For practical daytime and playtime frocks the call is outstanding for cotton reps, gabardines, chambrays, crinkled seersuckers (no ironing required in their big appeal), gingham, novelty cottons soft and spongy, piques and most important, new linens both plain and printed. Now that a sturdy non-crush type of linen is obtainable mothers are jubilant, for in it they have discovered the fabric ideal to withstand the vigorous test of the wear and tear of the thousand and one antics which little folks enjoy in a day's sport.

Perhaps the most exciting news is gay printed linens in bold patterns and colorings. Peasant designs in a blaze of daring colors abound and these rustic prints are especially good-looking when made up into separate little coats with hats to match. Florals in effective spacing, cunning animal, vegetable and fruit motifs on the new printed linens are a special lure to children. Then there are the exquisitely sheer printed handkerchief linens and the fine dimities which are adorable for dress-up wear.

Lace-trimmed organdie or georgette is a favorite theme this season with the designers of little-girl party dresses. Georgette made over taffeta is shown quite a little. A significant trend is the use of pastel colors which seem to have almost gained precedence over all white.

In the matter of styling, the princess silhouette is a great favorite while most sleeves are just short puffs. Note the dress worn by the little girl with the gorgeous doll in the picture. Her smart school and playtime dress is of firm linen cut on the new princess lines. Gay striped printed linen is used as a bordering. The style distinction of this charming dress will make instant appeal to both mother and little daughter.

The other two children are looking their prettiest in dainty party frocks or perhaps they took part in "last day of school" exercises. At any rate their little pleated sheer frocks are lovely and will be a joy the whole summer through. The wee maiden to the left is wearing an accordion pleated voile as charming in pastel colors as it is in white. A wide sash about her waist ties at the back in a huge butterfly bow.

Tiers of narrow pleatings animate the frock centered in the group. The vogue for pleating is as pronounced in children's fashions as in grown-up styles. The pleatings about the neckline extend over the short puff sleeves so as to achieve the new-vogue wide shoulder line.

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The latest call of the mode is for frocks of monotone silk crepe with complementary jackets made of the identical silk crepe of the dress, the same handsomely allover embroidered in bright contrasting colors. In the instance of the model pictured the sports dress is of pink silk crepe with a short-sleeved box jacket of the same crepe embroidered with green and blue wool. Blue buttons are on the dress.

Short-Term Wigs.

Wigs are proving popular among fashionable women in London, who use them to cover hair while it is regaining its natural color after a "blond" period.

Black Is Smart

Much black is shown for summer wear with tailored white jackets and white accessories.

DESIGNERS PRESENT SKIRT INNOVATIONS

Unusual color combinations and a strong Oriental influence characterize the new Alix collection. Some skirts are so full and flaring that they resemble parachutes or lamp shades, while others, are caught under at the hem like Turkish trousers.

The feminine silhouette is stressed at all times and clothes at Alix are fashioned to display a slender waistline and curving hip line. For day wear, bodices are skin tight and are usually made with a high neck trimmed with bows or loops of material. All clothes show a certain amount of fullness at the hip, and this is frequently stressed by the use of a full and flaring peplum.

Glamorous Apparel Wins

Approval of Parisiennes

For the polo matches, the races and late afternoon occasions of summer in Paris, it is now the smartest fashion to wear frocks and hats of the glamorous variety. Sheer fabrics like organdie are altogether enchanting and feminine for frocks with wide and sweeping skirts and hats with wide and flattering brims. These decorative full-skirted frocks, with little capes or puffed sleeves, have not by any means replaced the tailored evening costume with a jacket, an important fashion for parties from five o'clock on. Daylight dining will enhance this tailored idea.

Culottes More Popular

The fashion for culottes (divided skirts) is no longer confined to the active sports field, say stylists. They will be seen everywhere for all daytime occasions this summer. Last season saw them first spring into popularity for sailing, bicycling and beach wear.

Crochet That Is New and Quite Simple to Do

"Can anyone do it?" Most assuredly! It is a lovely rug, a matching foot-stool top or pillow for quick crocheting. Easy, six-sided medallions are done one by one, each flower a different color with background uniform or not, as you please. Sew them together and you're ready to begin the border crochet, going round and round with stripes of color used to break the background. Rug wool, rags or candlewicking may be used.

In pattern 5544 you will find complete instructions for making the rug shown; an illustration of it and of all stitches needed; material requirements; color suggestions.

Speed Scare Persists

Until the coming of the railways, the greatest sustained speed ever attained by man was established by the Roman Emperor Tiberius. Using relays of chariots, he sped to his dying brother, Drusus, at the rate of 200 miles a day.

For centuries man shook his head dubiously at every new proposal to increase the speed of land travel. When the locomotive was invented it was predicted that speeds of 30 miles an hour would prove fatal to human beings. Today airplanes travel at 250 miles and more an hour. Yet there persists the same haunting fear that at some still greater speed the human system will suddenly collapse.—Washington Star.

Noble Pride

There is a certain noble pride, through which merits shine brighter than through modesty.—Richter.

SYNOPSIS

Lella Seton, young and beautiful, and an expert on paintings, is commissioned to go over the collection of paintings in the home of the wealthy Kellers in New York, where a party is in progress. From her window she witnesses a man in another room strike a woman. Shortly after Mrs. Keller sends up word, asking her to join the party at dinner. Lella hastily dresses and goes down. She is seated between Mr. Deck, a critic, and Monty Mitchell, a noted lawyer. Introductions follow. There are Mr. Harriden, Miss Letty Van Alstyn, Mrs. Crane, Mrs. Watkins and Prince and Princess Rancini, guests. Lella finds she is taking the place of Nora Harriden. Dan Harriden leaves the table, and Mitchell explains he has gone up to see how his wife's headache is. He returns shortly. Deck, saying he must put in a call, leaves. Upon his return, he begs Lella to secretly take a message to Nora "to take no steps until I see you." Lella consents. Lella finds the Harriden rooms empty and so informs Deck. Coming out she passes Letty. Harriden asks Princess Rancini to run up and see his wife. The princess reports the absence of Nora. Harriden admits that he had a row, and believes she is spitefully hiding. Letty tells of seeing Lella come from the room. Lella accuses Harriden of having struck his wife. This Harriden denies. From the Harriden's window Lella sees what proves to be Nora's lifeless body. A ghastly head wound caused death. Dan says she was lying on her bed when he went to dinner, and when he ran up later the room was dark. Thinking her, Mrs. Keller comes upon a pool of blood in the closet. A diamond chain is missing. Donahay, police inspector, questions the guests. Harriden brands Lella's story of seeing a man strike a woman a lie. Anson, a maid, tells of seeing Deck outside the Harriden door. Deck says he passed by in seeking a lost handkerchief. Elkins, a servant, tells of overhearing Deck threaten Mrs. Harriden earlier in the day. Deck explains he was intoxicated and does not remember. That night Lella awakes with the impression of some one being in her room and then hears steps in the hall. Believing she was mistaken, she does not report it. Later Donahay sends for Lella. She identifies the dress he has as hers. Pinned to it is a handkerchief containing the missing chain. Lella tells of her intruder. Mitchell tries to help clear her. Harriden accuses Lella of being Deck's confederate. A large diamond is missing from the chain. The handkerchief which contained the diamond chain has one corner torn off and is stained.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

"Ah, there they differ. He thinks before—they think after. So think the Kellers. But people were drifting about so, that it's easy to overlook some one in the room. . . . I was next to the last. Or Deck was, we differ there. Letty Van Alstyn was the last. Now what about Letty?"

"Well, what about her?" I echoed. "She's cuckoo over Harriden," he told me.

"Harriden?"

"Yep. She might have dropped in to see Nora and Nora twitted her about something—Nora knew all about Letty's pash for Dan, and Letty got in a rage and caught up something that was handy. . . ."

I fung out, "But a girl couldn't have killed her—like that?"

"Somebody killed her—like that?"

"And dragged her, first to a closet, then to a window—"

"You can do a lot when you have to. Letty went up right after dinner," he pointed out. "She wouldn't give a hoot in Hades what happened to any one so she got clear. Tagging the diamonds to you would be just her line."

"A sweet menagerie," I commented. "I know all these people involved—except the Rancinis—and you don't—I'm not sure but that gives you the edge over me for you've no preconceptions. Except about Deck," he added, suddenly. "You think Deck is innocent, don't you?"

Under the quizzical gleam of his eyes, I felt the weight of his look upon me, a shrewd, legal, estimating look, and a sudden cold doubt of his friendliness blew like a chill wind through my uncertain mind.

I had a horrid thought. . . . What was his own share in this involved affair? At what time had he, himself, come down to dinner? About the same time as Deck. Just before Letty Van Alstyn. He had never liked Nora Harriden; he had admitted it with a rankness meant, perhaps, to disarm suspicion.

My look twisted away from his but of quickly enough. He rose, laughing at me with a chiding note of raillery.

"Shall we go see if my hankies catch?"

I looked again and laughed with him; I felt horribly ashamed of myself.

CHAPTER VII

Clancy had returned and his report as a curious one. There had been separate finds of handkerchiefs exactly similar to that stained and umpled piece of linen in Donahay's and; they had been found among the possessions of Harriden, and of Keller and of Deck.

Donahay sat glowering over that bit of news.

Mitchell urged the immediate examination of the handkerchief and Donahay agreed, sending Clancy up with it to the picture gallery. But before I could join him with my case of materials I had to be subjected to a search both of my belongings and of my person. I was told that this was a routine matter that everyone was undergoing, in the effort to discover the missing pendant.

After having seen that glittering chain brought out of the hanky inside my dress I was really afraid they'd conjure the famous pendant out of my powder box or the toe of a slipper. That demon thief might have tucked it anywhere. I breathed a good deal easier when the ordeal was over.

I was glad to be in the gallery again, where Clancy was waiting beside a card table that Elkins had set up. I was grateful to have the work on the handkerchief, grateful to Mitchell for trying to range me on the side of the investigators.

There were three people, I thought, on whom suspicion might justifiably rest; there were the Prince and Princess Rancini and Letty Van Alstyn, but there was not a scrap of evidence against any of them.

No, there were four. I had to be honest with myself; I couldn't pretend. There was Alan Deck. And against him was all the evidence they had.

I wanted to see Deck. I wanted to talk with him. Not here, with Clancy at hand—yes, here, even though we could say nothing that mattered. If I could see him again, I thought I could find an answer to that worrying uncertainty in me.

The testing was a difficult business. The handkerchief had been so thoroughly washed that I began to despair of uncertainty in my experiments. Not about the rust marks; those I did make sure of.

Then, in one of the corners, close under the fold of the hemstitched hem, I found traces of stain that yielded a blood reaction.

"That's blood," I said.

In the intervals of waiting and drying I walked up and down the gallery.

I found myself wishing to get at the records of these pictures to begin the real work for which I had come. For a few moments I forgot the nightmare of that murder. I grinned at a Magdalen, attributed to Titian, analogous to the one at Naples, and then I was caught by a lovely little Virgin whose suppliant, adoring curves and pure, poignant ecstasy made me yearn to prove her the creation of Angelico that she was labeled.

As my mind bit on these familiar realities my nerves steadied, and when I went down with the policeman to make my report I was feeling more like myself.

Alan Deck was with Monty Mitchell, and when he saw me he came forward quickly, with a "Good morning, accomplice!" in his mocking way. Monty said, "Find anything?" And they both came with me while I had my moment of importance, making my report to Donahay.

I used all the words and technical terms that I thought he would not know but the main facts were clear—blood in one corner, and five marks of rust.

Donahay nodded, as if he had guessed it all the time, and I moved away with Deck. Mitchell stayed with the inspector; I remember seeing him turn the handkerchief about very slowly in his hands.

Deck said thoughtfully, "That blood rather disposes of the theory that the diamonds might have been put there by some one who just picked them up—afterwards."

And at my assent he said, "Well, that's that!" In a hard voice.

Grant now appeared before us, announcing that a buffet luncheon was being served in the dining-room. As I went to wash my stained fingers I saw Miss Van Alstyn in the hall ahead of me. As she paused at her door, opposite that closed door behind which Nora Harriden was lying, I saw the maid, Anson, stop her, holding something in her hand.

"Yes, I threw it away," I heard Miss Van Alstyn say. "It's broken—throw it out."

"It's so pretty," Anson murmured.

"If you don't mind my keeping it—"

"As you like," said Miss Van Alstyn indifferently and disappeared into her room.

Out of an impulse of friendliness for that pretty Anson I turned and asked her what she had.

"It's for the hair, miss, only the comb is broken," she told me. "Maybe I could get another fixed on. It's so pretty—"

It was pretty—a sharp-pointed crescent about four or five inches long, glittering with bright brown stones. The comb, at right angles to the crescent, had been broken sharply off. I picked it up; it seemed a little large and too heavy for anywhere except the back of the head, above a froth of curls. It was of some solid brown metal and I thought another comb could easily be soldered on.

"It's worth it," I told Anson, and she said she had been afraid to carry it away without asking, for fear it had fallen in the basket by mistake.

I was reflecting that costume jewelry, to Miss Van Alstyn, was not worth repairing, and then, staring at those hard, pointed ends, that solid metal—

If a woman had a thing like this in her hands . . . if she struck out with it, furiously. . . .

"When did you find this, Anson?"

"Last night, she told me. When she had been arranging the room for the night."

"Were the broken pieces of the comb in the basket, too?"

"I did see some broken pieces. But they went with the trash. They couldn't have been fixed."

"With the trash? Where did the trash go?"

"Why, in the incinerator, Miss," she answered, eyes widening at my questions.

"And was the incinerator going?"

"Last night, miss? I couldn't say. I know it hasn't been going this morning for that policeman gave orders not to have anything burned."

I turned the crescent about. No sign of a blood film over any of its brightness—but blood could be superficially washed off in running water. A blow with it, a jab with one of those viciously pointed ends, would have broken off the comb. . . . She might not have thought to wash off the pieces of the comb. . . .

In imagination I saw Letty Van Alstyn snatching this crescent from her hair, striking out recklessly. . . .

Anson was staring at me; I handed it back to her, saying something about my interest in imitations to excuse my absorption in it. . . . Letty Van Alstyn came out of her room, passing down to luncheon, and in the vague smile she swept over us I felt a sharpening of curiosity.

Scrubbing my stained fingers, brushing out my hair, I tried to fit the pieces together in this pattern. . . . Suppose Letty were guilty—how about that scene at the window? Well, that could have had nothing to do with the actual murder—it might have been Deck, or Rancini or Harriden for all his denials. . . .

Suppose it had been Harriden. Suppose he had gone on down to dinner, and Nora had been in bed, resentful, hysterical, when Letty had dropped in, on her way down. Nora might have surmised that Letty had been stirring up Dan's jealousy, so there was every reason for a scene between them. A terrific scene, in which Letty, in blind rage or in self protection had struck out with the first thing at hand. . . .

I had to imagine her picking up one of Dan's handkerchiefs to wipe off the blood. . . . trusting Nora into the closet. . . . waiting till she was sure the rest were down at dinner, then putting her out the window. Perhaps the blood-stained handkerchief had been a crumpled ball in Letty's brown bag and after dinner she had gone up to wash it out—that was when she had met me in the hall, outside Mrs. Harriden's door.

Perhaps the yellow diamonds had been in Letty's brown bag, too. And late that night—or rather early in the morning—she had torn the initials out of the dried handkerchief and stolen up to my room.

The pieces fitted together, I thought excitedly. But there was nothing in the world to sustain that wild suspicion but my vivid imagination—nothing unless there should be blood upon the pieces of broken comb in the incinerator.

I fairly raced down, then, to the buffet luncheon, eager to pour this out to Mitchell.

Mitchell was busily filling a plate so I went over to him. His eyes looked darker and more alert than ever; his black hair, which began quite far back on his forehead was standing up in an excited crest. We sat down at a corner of the table—he hated eating in his lap, he declared—and under my breath I poured out my conjecturings.

Promptly he dashed my hopes. "Incinerator been going for an hour. Donahay let them start it up when he saw there weren't any rags there—just trash and garbage. Did you keep the crescent?"

When I said I hadn't, he advised me to get it and test it for blood. But he seemed a little detached. He even said, "I think you're barking up the wrong tree."

"It was your tree," I told him indignantly. "You thought she could be a guilty soul."

"Oh, a possibility—yes. But somehow—"

He left it in dubiety.

We went on talking. I remember saying about the inquest, "Why don't they have it today and get it over with?" And he said that Donahay wanted to do more work on the case, wanted enough for an indictment, if possible. And he said, "By keeping people herded up like this, in an isolation camp, he can induce a state of nerves that may cause a breakdown. Anything may develop at any moment. That's psychology."

After luncheon he had me get my hat and coat and, with Donahay's permission, he took me outdoors and marched me up and down the landscaped road in front of the house where cool wind and sunshine had their tonic effect.

The shore was being patrolled by guards to keep reporters and curiosity seekers from landing, and I had a feeling of being under martial law in some internment camp.

Other members of the house-party were out taking exercise, too; the Prince Rancini walked by, very smartly turned out with spats and a cane. After we had passed each other twice he turned, smiling, to ask permission to join us.

Without his wife's presence he expanded into gaiety; he seemed to me a big, light-hearted pleasure-loving fellow, with a Continental's casual cynicism about life and emotional responsiveness to beauty. He stopped us to show us a particularly lovely contrast of light and dark blue in the sea, pointing with his stick, and he told us of his swimming feats at Capri and his skiing records at St. Moritz and of his shooting triumphs in Scotland.

For a time I was amused at this distraction; no one could have imagined that we three people, promising up and down those stately avenues, chatting of tournaments were three members of an isolated household darkened by death and shadowed by suspicion.

Mitchell said very little—he had small chance against the prince except through interruptions. But he created a diversion by suddenly tripping over a root and emitting a succession of fervent damns as he hopped about distressfully. "It's this confounded ankle—strained it a year ago. May I borrow your stick?" he asked the prince.

I thought Rancini passed it over rather reluctantly. At the time I imagined he fancied it as part of his own costume. Mitchell leaned on it as he walked along with us, refusing to return to the house. "Be all right in a second."

Then Rancini began telling about his palace in Rome that he was doing over and about his efforts to collect the tapestries and furniture that he had previously sold. I gathered that he was doing all this with his wife's money.

It was when we returned to the house, and Mitchell was passing back the cane, declaring himself completely recovered, that he made a casual-sounding observation.

"This is one of those trick things, isn't it, prince? Isn't there a spring I feel here—?"

"But yes," said Rancini, without the slightest hesitation. "You press this—please take your hands away. I do it—I know this thing. So—like that. And out comes this little toy."

What came out was the point of a substantial looking knife, quite a stabbing tool. "Another press and a bayonet," said Rancini, laughing. "Quite a toy," Mitchell commented, eyeing it quizzically.

"And not such a toy at that. In Rome now, the streets are safe, but in Paris, when one is late—in the quarters of a little milliner, perhaps—"

"With a jealous lover around the corner," Monty Mitchell suggested.

"Sl, sl!" Rancini laughed, then, under his breath to me he murmured in swift Italian, "When the heart is empty one must pass the hours," and I smiled up at his smile and asked to see the knife again.

I looked hard at it. The sharp, strong point seemed bright, unstained.

CHAPTER VIII

Mitchell said very naturally, "A useful thing, that! A pity Nora Harriden didn't have one at hand when that fellow set on her."

Not a quiver of Rancini's face, as far as I could see. Perhaps the fact that there wasn't a quiver, that his voice was blandly expressionless meant something. Smoothly he agreed, "It might have made all the difference."

We were back in the house again, its walls shut upon us, closing us in to tension and uncertainty and the strain of our own thoughts.

Mitchell went off to Donahay, coming back just for a moment to report that no trace of the pendant had been found. When I went to Anson to get the crescent, with a little made-up speech about my interest in imitation stones, she told me that Miss Van Alstyn had asked for it back, giving her instead a star of brilliants.

She was immensely pleased and I immensely puzzled.

Letty Van Alstyn had been indifference itself before me as to the fate of that broken ornament. Why the sudden, surreptitious change? I tried, on the impulse, to find her but she wasn't in her room; my maid at last located her in the Keller sitting-room, with Mrs. Crane and the two Kellers, playing at bridge.

"I don't think they liked my barging in on them, and Miss Van Alstyn looked frankly wondering when I asked for the crescent. Yes, she had taken it back, she told me, her eyes reverting to the cards; she rather thought she'd get herself another one and so didn't want a duplicate about. Certainly I could look at it if I wished; it was somewhere in her room, she supposed vaguely. "Just ask Anson to find it." I closed the door upon her faintly breathed but perfectly audible, "Extraordinary."

But Anson could not find that crescent. She promised to bring it up to me when she did. "Maybe she locked it up with her jewels," she suggested.

The Truth About Golf

There has been so much mystery, bunk and high-pressure salesmanship surrounding golf that many a would-be golfer has hesitated to take it up, and many who have taken lessons have soon struck snags which have hindered their pleasure in the game. It is true that golf is a game you cannot learn by yourself, because there is no such thing as a "born" or "natural" golf swing. But there is so much health and pure enjoyment to be had out of fairly well-played golf that it is worth while making the few sacrifices the game demands.

There are some things the human being does naturally, such as walking, running, striking with the right hand, throwing or catching a ball. Other things, like the golf swing, are unnatural; therefore the muscles must be trained and set in those unnatural channels. Golf players call it "grooving a swing". And there are simply no short cuts to it. Only one thing will "groove" a muscle so that it performs an unnatural action naturally, and that is practice, practice and more practice.

The whole hubbub about golf revolves around the fact that human beings are lazy. They don't want to work for their fun, and practice is work. They are forever looking for short cuts, or easy ways to learn. . . .—Paul Gallico in Cosmopolitan.

HAVE YOU REGISTERED?—JULY 16 LAST DAY

Apparently all the hullabaloo on the national political scene has left many of us forgetting that there is the little matter of another primary election coming up in California August 25.

Or maybe not much has been said about it because people are trying purposely to forget it.

At any rate, there will be some good backyard scraps and not a little hair-pulling among aspirants in their efforts to get on party tickets.

This should provide the interest.

As to the significance of this election, even though it looks strictly bush league beside the big one coming in November, there are plenty of reasons why it's worth a trip to the polls. Aside from the well-known truism that a good citizen always votes, there is the compelling logic that a small turnout permits active minorities to put their own—and not always the best—men in seats of power.

There are thousands in California who are eligible, but have not, as yet, registered. No one who has signed in since January 1 need do so again. But you who haven't—why not register, now, and get it over with?

IT'S YOUR GOOD NEWS

To newspapers of the nation last week came a bit of good news that is worth passing on, since it concerns advertising and progress in advertising is really good news to every producer, distributor or consumer—in short, to everyone.

The American Newspaper Publishers' association reported results of its annual survey, showing that the 387 leading American companies spent $135,000,000 in 1935 to back up their conviction that it pays to advertise—in newspapers. This was roughly 60 per cent of their entire expenditure, leaving 40 per cent for all other media, and the total was considerably more than in the previous year. But it's your good news.

Just the other day Ralph Taylor, executive secretary of the Agricultural Council of California, wrote a piece on what newspaper advertising has done for producers. He cited the "Sunkist" growers of citrus fruits, who in 28 years spent $20,000,000 for advertising, thereby increasing per capita consumption of their product from 7 pounds to 37.5 pounds, a jump of 428 per cent!

As for distributors, all progressive individual merchants utilize newspapers to boost sales. And the whole modern system of multiple-unit, big volume, rapid turnover retailing has extensive advertising as its very bedrock basis. From this the public benefits through lower prices.

The Federal Trade commission credits a large part of the multiple-unit stores' lower selling prices to "their more extensive use of newspaper advertising." And a recently-passed Florida law designed to punish these stores cites as one reason their "more efficient coverage and results obtained from advertising."

Whatever else all this proves, it does seem to give a lot of official recognition to newspaper advertising as a public service. And that, as gains continue, makes it your good news.

As the mid-summer days return, many think of getting away for a vacation. It may be in the mountains, a season at the seashore or a voyage to Hawaii, the wonder-island of the mid-Pacific, with its colorful, alluring and challenge of abundance for pleasure and a good time. This geographical neighbor has won a favorite spot in the heart of thousands of Californians. Wanderlust is an intense habit with us native state people, especially if we have the time and money! We all want to go to the land of the natural beauty, with its fascinating seashore and abundance of semi-tropical fruits. Uncle Sam has always manifested interest for Hawaii, and since the first of the year we have spent more than $12,200,000 for construction projects on the island, besides maintenance of army and navy services and unemployment relief. Hawaii wants statehood, and next Congress may consider it. This would give us 49 stars in "Old Glory." Hawaii was made a territory originally with the ultimate idea of statehood. For many years it has been an orderly, popular fledgling of the United States, ever a source of pride to its parent land, both as a luxurious tropic playground and as an industrious little island that sends thousands of pounds of sugar to this nation annually. Hawaii would have three votes in Congress (two senators and one representative). Now she has a non-voting delegate, a situation amounting to taxation without representation.

The history of humanity throughout the ages has always been an inevitable, unceasing struggle for better conditions. There is a lack of fidelity with many who want things changed, but who fail to show honest integrity to help work out the solution. Unwilling to do the fair and honest thing; unwilling to do an honest day's work has sent its victims to jail. Too many long for leisure when in reality it's one of the worst things they could have. Probably nine-tenths of the mischief in the world is done by idlers. Busy people rarely get into mischief; they do not have the time. Children raised in idleness become lazy and ungovernable. Wise parents see that their children are kept busy, and possess an active mind. This leads to good citizenship. The appeal in these times is for all to be frugal and thrifty, loan a hand wherever possible to help, and earn and save for future posterity.

Tuberculosis, that dread malady, holds the sickle of death in its right hand, but of late years it has been meeting considerable defeat by its enemy as it has striven to garner its victims. California now has one of the lowest death-rates from tuberculosis in the world. This remarkable record, which includes a reduction in deaths from the disease, is only 189 to every 100,000 population in 1915, to 61 per 100,000 population in the past year; this record will continue to improve according to medical advice. It is both surprising as well as gratifying, and proves that this state is achieving marvelous benefits through its climate and most of all, unprecedented development of sanatoriums and the hospitalization, both from the standpoint of prevention and cure; also the deportation of aliens who are victims of the disease.

The Tourist Season Is Here

O. E. S. NOTES

Point Loma chapter No. 490 O. E. S. met in regular session Monday evening, July 6, with Gladys Nelson, worthy matron and Nels Berge, worthy patron, presiding. Maidie Jopling, deputy grand matron and Josephine Simons, worthy matron of Southern Star chapter, were present and escorted East and a large number of visitors were present on the sidelines.

Routine business was transacted and the resignations of the associate conductress and associate patron Mr. and Mrs. Bob Burnett, were accepted with extreme regret. Point Loma chapter will feel the loss of sister and brother Burnett keenly and truly hope that they can soon return to California and Point Loma chapter.

Red, white and blue were the colors used to decorate the banquet hall, where refreshments, under the chairmanship of Coranna Burnett, were served. She was assisted by Oma Rocco and Tillie Oberholzer.

LATEST IDEA IN BUSES

Patrons of Pacific Greyhound Lines will enjoy new thrills in bus travel when they ride in the latest motorcoach creation. These "super-buses" represent the most recent developments in bus construction. Below is shown one of the fleet of 50 ultra modern coaches recently put in service by Pacific Greyhound Lines. With motor installed in rear, the passenger compartment is insulated from motor noises and vibration and all fumes and exhaust gases are shut out. Above is depicted the interior of the bus with unique seating arrangement for 36 passengers above the level of the six foot high aisle which runs the length of the car. Seats are spaced to provide adequate leg room. Baggage is carried in special compartments, sealed against dust and water, underneath the bus. These buses are exclusive with Greyhound.

Elmer Steele To Head Allied Civic Ass'n.

At the meeting of the Allied Civic association held the last Friday in June, permanent officers were elected as follows:

Elmer E. Steele, president.
C. Ludlow, vice president.
Spade Burps, secy-treasurer.

Delegates are requested to attend meetings of this organization, from each and every civic body in the beach district. A united front, it is believed, can gain more than several organizations each working on their own account and often for the same purpose but in a different way.

Regular meetings are held the 4th Friday of each month. In July this will be on the 24th.

HISTORY ESTABLISHMENT OF CALIFORNIA MISSIONS

* California's famous old Missions, * with their historical and roman- * tic backgrounds, annually at- * tract thousands of visitors. Twen- * ty-one Franciscan Missions were * founded by the Rev. Fray Junipero Serra and his colleagues * extending from San Diego to * what is now Sonoma county. * Some are in ruins, others have * been restored, all are preserved * as priceless landmarks. Because * of recent widespread revival of * interest in the old Missions, Earl * Lee Kelly, Director of the Dept. * of Public Works, at the request * of Governor Frank F. Merriam, * has prepared for the benefit of * visitors, brief histories of them * directions on how to reach them * over California highways. For * the purposes of this series, the * Missions will be taken up in the * order of their location from * south to north, rather than in * the sequence of their founding. * * * * *

MISSION SAN BUENAVENTURA March 31, 1782.

Planning the conquest of Upper California, Inspector-General Don Joseph de Galvez, from his Mexican headquarters near La Paz, as early as September 15, 1768, wrote to Father Junipero Serra that the third of the Franciscan stations to be established in the new territory should be named San Buenaventura. The first, Galvez said, would be at San Diego, the second at Monterey and between those two points there should be "the intermediate mission which shall be called San Buenaventura."

However, through no fault of either Galvez or Father Serra, Mission San Buenaventura was the ninth instead of the third mission founded in California. Its creation was delayed twelve years, according to Fr. Engelhardt, because of clashes between the military and the Indians at Mission San Gabriel arising out of mistreatment of the natives by the soldiers there.

San Buenaventura was founded by Father Serra on Easter Sunday, March 31, 1782, on a site which had been discovered and claimed for Spain by the great navigator, Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, on October 10, 1542, fifty years, almost to a day, after the landing of Christopher Columbus.

Cabrillo was hospitably received by the Indians, treated them kindly and then sailed away. Sixty years later, another Spanish explorer, Sebastian Vizcaino, dropped anchor there and later recorded the friendliness of the natives. Vizcaino continued on northward and found Monterey Bay. For one hundred and sixty-seven years after his departure this section of the future California remained unvisited by white men. And then in the spring of 1769, Gaspar de Portola set out with an expedition from San Diego to relocate Monterey Bay accompanied, as we know, by Fathers Juan Crespi and Francisco Gomez. Once again the white man came to the land that was to become known as San Buenaventura and the discerning Crespi marked it down as a suitable site for a missionary station.

"I named this pueblo Asuncion de Neustra Senora," Father Crespi wrote at the time in his diary, "and I hope that such a good site will be nothing lacking will be a good Mission through the intercession of this Grand Lady." Father Crespi was impressed by the number of Indians living there and the opportunity offered to win converts to Christianity.

At the feast of Corpus Christi, celebrated for the first time at Mission San Carlos de Monterey on Sunday, May 30, 1771, Junipero Serra, Fr. Presidente of the Missions, appointed Fathers Antonio Paterna and Antonio Cruzado to proceed to Asuncion de Neustra Senora and establish Mission San Buenaventura. The two sailed to San Diego and then set out with Captain Pedro Fages and soldiers for their new field. As we have seen, they arrived at Mission San Gabriel during the Indian revolt against the military and Fages refused to go on, strengthening the garrison of San Gabriel with the troops intended for San Buenaventura.

It was not until March, 1782, that Father Serra, at a conference with Governor Neve at Mission San Gabriel, obtained permission to found San Buenaventura. He marched north with Neve, but before the expedition reached its destination, the Governor was recalled for a campaign against the Yuma Indians and Father Serra went on with Fr. Pedro Cambon and a small bodyguard. On March 31, Father Serra raised and blessed the Cross on the chosen site, celebrated High Mass in a brushwood shelter with the aid of Fr. Cambon, who constituted the choir, and Mission San Buenaventura came into existence. Father Serra remained at San Buenaventura for three weeks and then returned to Monterey from where he dispatched Fathers Francisco Dumetz and Vicente de Santa Maria to the new mission to relieve Father Cambon, who, meantime, had administered the first baptism to the new-born son of Eugenio Valdez, soldier, and Sebastiana Josepha Quintana, his wife. This was on April 27, 1782.

The old mission register shows that by the end of 1785 there had been 133 baptisms; that in 1786 there were 112 converts during that year, and that in 1796, some thirteen years after the founding of the mission, the number of baptisms had reached 1,100.

Visiting San Buenaventura in November, 1793, Captain George Vancouver, English navigator and historian, noted in his diary the prosperity of the mission and added that the first church of the station had been destroyed by fire. He gave no date. Fr. Engelhardt reached the conclusion from study of the baptismal register that if such a disaster occurred it took place between December 9, 1791, and June 21, 1792.

Fr. Presidente Lasuen reported to the government on March 11, 1795, that the church of San Buenaventura, constructed of masonry, was about half completed and from that date on to September 10, 1809, the mission fathers made frequent reports on progress in the building of the church, granaries, adobe houses for the neophytes, a tannery and other structures, including a chapel for the Indian community near Casita. Solemn High Mass was celebrated for the first time in the new church on September 10, 1809. The first baptism in the new edifice took place on September 30.

San Buenaventura was badly damaged by the earthquake of December, 1812, and it was not until July 14, 1815, that restoration work was finished.

In July, the year of the earthquake, Father Jose Senan, senior missionary at San Buenaventura, was appointed Presidente of the Franciscans in California. His labors of love brought remarkable progress to the mission and enrichment of the church and vestry with various church goods, paintings and interior beautification in spite of the fact that from 1811 to the end of the missionary period, San Buenaventura was compelled to pay heavy tribute to the support of the military, which had ceased to receive pay, clothing or food from Mexico as a result of the revolt against Spain.

Already overburdened with worries created by the constant demands of the Santa Barbara presidio, as revealed by the preserved correspondence between him and Captain Jose de la Guerra of the presidio, wherein the priest repeatedly protested against the injustice of throwing support of the soldiers and their families upon the mission Indians, Father Sena was given additional grief by a tragic incident occurring on May 31, 1819.

On this day a band of Mojave Indians came from the sierras of the Colorado river to pay a visit to Father Senan. Doubting the sincerity of the natives, Corporal Rufino Leiva had them incarcerated in the guardhouse. He refused the priest's pleas for their release. The following morning, the corporal punished one of the Mojaves in the stocks and his comrades, in great anger, forced their way out of their prison, killed Leiva and in an ensuing battle between them and the neophytes and soldiers nine lives were sacrificed. This affair aroused the Indians of the Colorado to fury and for several years they exacted revenge by attacking settlers.

Although a friend of the missionaries, Captain de la Guerra several times sought to obtain mission lands for the government and old records reveal Father Senan's fight to save Rancho de Piru for his charges. An impassioned protest to Governor Sola in February, 1822, evidently won a victory for the missionary for we find the Governor refusing to take Piru from the Indians. Father Senan died on August 24, 1823.

The story of San Buenaventura during the hectic years of Mexican political misrule under successive territorial administrations, which brought about destruction of the California missions and seizure of their lands, is similar to that of the missions dealt with in preceding installments of this little history of the Franciscans. San Buenaventura suffered at the hands of Governor J. M. Echeandia and his successors as did the other missions. However, it appears that this mission was more fortunate than the others in having Rafael Gonzales as civil administrator. Gonzalez took over the station in June, 1836, and when William Hartnell, Inspector General of Missions, arrived there in June, 1839, he found the temporal affairs of San Buenaventura in good shape and his inventory showed 2,208 head of cattle, 1,670 sheep, 799 horses, 35 mules, 65 goats and 15 mules.

Governor Pio Pico completed the ruin of San Buenaventura. He appointed his brother, Don Andres Pico, and Don Juan Manso as commissioners to "lease the missions." San Buenaventura was leased to Narciso Botello and Jose Arnaz on December 5, 1845, for an annual rental of $1,630, and on June 8, 1846, was sold to Arnaz for $12,000, no part of which Pico paid to the Indians or the mission fathers. The United States government, following American occupation, declared this and other mission sales illegal and on May 23, 1862, President Lincoln signed the proclamation returning San Buenaventura to the Catholic church.

First steps toward restoration of the old mission were taken by Fr. John Compla, who was resident missionary at San Buenaventura from 1861 to 1877. With the advent of the Southern Pacific railroad in 1887, Fr. Cipran Rubio started extensive improvements and planned to erect a parish school. The school was not completed until August, 1922, when the Sisters of the Holy Cross took charge. For the preservation of old treasures and relics the Mission Museum adjoining the mission was erected in 1929. Here are the only two wooden mission bells known to have reached California in the days of the early padres. The Society of Ventura Pioneers and the Native Daughters of the Golden West have done much to make San Buenaventura and the Mission Museum the attractions they are today. Back of the mission is the famous Cross on the Hill erected by the Ventura chamber of commerce in 1913 to replace the one blown down in 1875, which was the successor to the original cross raised there at an uncertain date. Many believe the first cross was erected by Father Serra, but this Fr. Engelhardt, mission historian, doubts because no mention of it ever was made by Palou, faithful chronicler of Junipero.

Next: Mission Santa Barbara.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

Hazel O. Minot will speak at Theo-next Sunday at 3 o'clock on "Behind Visionaries". The public is cordially invited to take part in the discussion after her address. Was Swedenborg a true Seer? How far have men like Emerson and Thoreau of the New England Transcendental school been messengers of truth? What is meant by mystic? What is the difference between a mystically enlightened man and one that is trained spiritually and intellectually to go behind the veils of matter? Theosophy declares that the latter are the adepts of the race, and that there is a definite pathway of preparation that gives one these powers. Mrs. Minot will speak on this and explain some of the tests such adepts must pass in order to become the initiates they are.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

Semi-Annual Communion Services will be conducted on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church,
The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.
"The Sacrament" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon, and the Golden Rule is from Hebrews: "To do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased."

A Scriptural selection in the Lesson-Sermon includes these passages from John: "And he said unto them, Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes. . . . As soon then as they were come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread. . . . Jesus saith unto them, Come and dine. And none of the disciples durst ask him,
Who art thou? knowing that it was the Lord."

One of the passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, states: "This spiritual meeting with our Lord in the dawn of a new light is the morning meal which Christian Scientists commemorate. They bow before Christ, Truth, to receive more of his reappearing and silently

Box Car School, Out in California

By H. M. IVEY

STANDING in the shadows of the high hills, in the rugged fastness of the extreme northern reaches of Mendocino county, California, is a personification of the Little Red School House which may some day become nationally known and nationally famous.

The Bell Springs Station school—the Box Car school, as it is known to the few who have knowledge of its existence—was born out of necessity and is surely one of very few such answers to a definite need, if not the only one in existence.

Bell Spring Station's population is very limited and its present school enrollment numbers eight. The station itself probably owes its existence to the necessity of providing a place of residence for Northwestern Pacific section workers, for in this isolated district, in the heart of the mountains, the railroad's minute men must be on the job, alert and diligent to keep a clear, safe and serviceable track.

The school building is exactly what the name implies—a Northwestern Pacific box car of the conventional box car red, but in arrangement and appointment it serves admirably its purpose and can accommodate a limited increase in attendance.

About 100 feet removed from the railroad right-of-way, well lighted through skylight and eight windows, four on each side, the interior has been done over to make it secure against the blasts of winter. Rattan seats, which have done service in the company's "day coaches," furnish a comfortable seating arrangement before the sloping desks. The "front" of the building, toward which the students face, is provided with desk and table for use of the teacher.

Box Car school was made possible by the interest and co-operation of the Northwestern Pacific high officials, even E. H. Maggard, president and general manager, having lent aid to the project. Others who found time to give consideration to the future of Bell Springs Station youth were William Neff, general superintendent, and M. L. Gillogly, company valuation agent.

If fortunate in finding sympathetic railroad officials, Box Car school was especially fortunate to secure the services of Miss Florence Owens as teacher, one who is entirely in sympathy with her task and discharges her duties with enthusiasm.

dangerous about the chain, Bobby continued to pull and presently there was the trap itself right in front of him. He sat down and studied it. He wondered how it worked. He was afraid of it but he was very, very curious. There it lay with its paws spread wide. Bobby remembered that Billy Mink had said that there would be no danger if he put his paw under it. Very cautiously he slipped a paw underneath. All of a sudden that trap jumped right off the ground. There had been a wicked sounding snap and those two jaws flew up and came together so swiftly that Bobby didn't really see what had happened. He had sprung the trap.

Bobby didn't wait to see what had happened or what was going to happen next. He almost turned a back somersault in his hurry to get away from the strange thing. He scurried along back up the Laughing Brook as if he expected that trap would follow him.

BOBBY COON GETS A FRIGHT

BOBBY COON walked slowly down the bank of the Laughing Brook to the little fence with the little opening in it which he knew a trap was hidden. Bobby was not at all easy in his mind. He didn't know much about traps. If he had known more about them than he did he would have been less afraid. Looking across the Laughing Brook he could see a little brown form bounding along the other bank in the moonlight. It was Billy Mink. He hard. He pulled them away as if they had been burned. Nothing happened. Curiosity gave Bobby new courage. He dug away very carefully the leaves and sand at that particular spot and presently he uncovered something shiny. Anything bright and shiny always interests Bobby Coon. Again he touched it and snatched away his paw. Nothing happened. Then Bobby got hold of that shiny thing and pulled ever so gently. The leaves in the little opening in the fence moved. Bobby pulled again. Those leaves moved some more. You see, Bobby had hold of the chain of that hidden trap. Finding that there was nothing knew that Billy was not afraid and that Billy was going to do on that side of the Laughing Brook what he himself had agreed to do on his side.

Bobby approached the little opening in that fence made of sticks, and studied it carefully. Billy Mink had said there was a trap there, but look as he would, Bobby couldn't see a sign of one. Some wet, dead leaves lay in the little opening in the fence and nothing else was to be seen. Billy Mink had said the trap was under those leaves. Bobby wondered how Billy Mink knew. Billy had told him that there was no danger except right in that little opening.

Very cautiously Bobby pulled away the dead leaves that covered the ground on his side of the little fence in front of the opening. He even dug down into the sand a little. Presently his fingers caught something

THE COIN IN THE KNOT

The magician takes a handkerchief and twists it into the form of a loose rope. He brings the ends together and ties a knot in the center of the handkerchief.

He commands a coin to appear in the knot. He hands the handkerchief to a spectator, who discovers that the coin is there. The handkerchief must be untied in order to remove the coin.

At the start of the trick the magician has the coin concealed in the folds at one end of the handkerchief. When he lets the center of the handkerchief sag, he releases the coin. It slides through the cloth tube and stops at the center. The magician simply ties the knot around it.

REMEMBERING

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHEN some old road we wind again,
Some road we walked in other days,
The things we seek to find again
Are flowered fields and shaded ways—
Avoid the rocks that hurt our feet
And take the pathway that was sweet.

And when the mind goes wandering
Along the long age of life,
What folly to sit pondering
Upon the sadness and the strife—
When we might walk the better years,
Recall the smiles, forget the tears.

Beside the fading ember, then
Let love recall the better thing,
The mind alone remember then
The moments worth remembering—
Avoid the rocks that hurt our feet
And take the pathway that was sweet.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

Make up your mind that it is senseless to quarrel.
You will meet many people that you dislike.

Many of them will be quarrelsome. Your Neighbor conceived, ill tempered. Avoid such people, but tolerate them. They may turn out to be better than you think they are.

There is plenty of room on this earth for human beings of all sorts and kind. Some of them will differ with you in politics, others in religion. Some may be downright ugly. But they are as they are made. Quarreling with them will make you unhappy, and you're going to need all the happiness you can find as you travel through life.

Some of them may be snobbish and "high hat". You can easily keep away from that sort. But you will be thrown in with certain people whom you cannot avoid. They may live next door to you, they may belong to the same church or club, they may intrude themselves upon you in many unpleasant ways. It will do you no good to "get your back up" when they are around. You will get only misery out of quarreling with them. Just convince yourself that there must be that kind of people in the world with you, and that the easiest way is to be as cheerful as possible in their presence, eschew arguments with them, and let them go their own way.

You can kill mosquitoes and spiders and rattlesnakes and other creatures with which you may be thrown as you go on. You can't kill human beings without getting into serious trouble. I do not contend that you ought to nurse odious people in your bosom, or try to reform them. All I suggest is that if you must be with them you will not be unhappy about it, but get along as well you can. And now and then you are pretty sure to find that somebody you thought was a pest was a really good sort when you came to know him well, and that you lost a good deal by not getting better acquainted with him.

Dislike reacts on the person who harbors it. Better figure that wherever you go you will find men and women who are constant irritations to you. Leave them alone if you can. If you can't, just be civil and pleasant and if they resent that keep out of their neighborhood. The chief end of man I honestly believe is happiness. You can't be happy when you are hating other people. But toleration will put it out of their power to annoy you. Try this plan for a couple of weeks. I think you will profit by it.

Household Questions

Air the bread and cake boxes frequently during the summer months. Mould is likely to form on breads and cakes kept in boxes during the warm weather.

Chamois wet in cold water and wrung dry will polish mahogany furniture that has become cloudy.

Do not remove husks from green corn until just before putting on to boil. Corn spoils quickly, so it should be used as soon as possible after purchasing.

When cake or bread is too brown or is burned, grate gently with a fine grater (nutmeg grater preferred) until the cake or bread is a golden brown.

A little garlic rubbed over the broiler on which steak is broiled gives steak a delicious flavor.

Always strain hot fat used for deep frying through a piece of cheese cloth each time it is used and set in a cool place. Treated in this way fat may be used many times.

Sandwiches may be kept moist for 24 hours if they are wrapped tight as soon as made, in waxed paper, then placed in a box lined with a damp cloth and covered with a cloth. Keep in a cool place.

Mayonnaise may be kept for several weeks in refrigerator if a tablespoonful of boiling water is added to it before bottling.

Never put hot foods in your refrigerator or ice box. Wait until they have cooled.

Mix salads with a fork instead of a spoon or ladle.

DOLLARS & HEALTH

The successful person is a healthy person. Don't let yourself be handicapped by sick headaches, a sluggish condition, stomach "nerves" and other dangerous signs of over-acidity.

TAKE MILNESIAS

Milnesia, the original milk of magnesia in wafer form, neutralizes stomach acid. Each wafer equals 4 teaspoonfuls of milk of magnesia. Thin, crunchy, mint-flavor, tasty. 20c, 35c & 60c at drug stores.

HEARTBURN?

It's surprising how many have heart burn. Hurried eating, overeating, heavy smoking, excessive drinking all lead to heartburn. When it comes, heed the warning. Your stomach is on a strike.

That's a Peptimist

A Pessimist closes an eye, wrinkles his face, draws up the corners of his mouth, and says, "It can't be done."

An Optimist has a face full of sunshine. He beams on you and says, "It can be done"—and then lets Joe "do it."

But a Pepti-mist takes off his coat, rolls up his sleeves, and goes to it, and does it.

SLEEP SOUNDLY

Lack of exercise and injudicious eating make stomachs acid. You must neutralize stomach acids if you would sleep soundly all night and wake up feeling refreshed and really fit.

MILNESIA FOR HEALTH

Milnesia, the original milk of magnesia in wafer form, neutralizes stomach acids, gives quick, pleasant elimination. Each wafer equals 4 teaspoonfuls milk of magnesia. Tasty, too. 20c, 35c & 60c everywhere.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL EVENTS

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Palmer of 4843 Voltaire street expect to move to La Jolla very soon where Mr. Palmer has accepted a position at the Biological Institute.

Walter Fogarty of San Diego, high school lad that formerly lived at Loma Portal, on Saturday last reopened the Abbott street service station at corner of Voltaire.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest J. Smith (Dorothy Vaughan) are leaving Sunday, July 12, on a trip to Oregon, Washington and Vancouver, Canada. They also plan to visit Crater Lake and the Victoria Islands.

Dr. and Mrs. I. W. Parks and daughters left Wednesday morning for a vacation trip to the north. A good deal of the time to be spent at Sterling City in the Chico section of California. Dr. Parks will also attend the dentists convention in San Francisco while away.

A card to the News from Mr. and Mrs. Lisle Follette, former residents here, though now in San Diego, reports a very fine vacation trip visiting Crater Lake, Seattle, the Fred Reid's at Corvallis, Oregon, and a lot of other interesting spots in the Pacific northwest.

The Strand Barber Shop was this week taken over by R. R. Edwards who has followed the tonsorial line in San Diego for fourteen years. A good part of this time Mr. Edwards conducted the Bobbie Shop in the Granger bldg., and specialized as a fancy hair cutter for women and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Nelson, 4661 Coronado avenue, and two sons, returned Sunday from two weeks vacation, most of which was spent in Yosemite National park. A very splendid outing is reported with other relatives gathered en route at different places, there being fourteen family members on the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Van Hook spent the week end in the Laganas Friday evening they went up and camped with the Farm Bureau folks until Monday morning. There were about 75 people at the camp and the Van Hooks enjoyed the holiday, especially as they celebrated their wedding anniversary during their absence.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Lehigh arrived home Sunday evening from a three weeks trip to Cripple Creek, Colorado, where they went to look after business interests. Their daughter, Mrs. G. H. Oshier and her daughter Elaine, returned with them for an outing at the beach. C. D. says he's mighty glad to be back and have a good breath of fresh ocean ozone. The trip was a "ph-e-e-w" hot one.

A house-warming, including a pot luck supper, was enjoyed by more than thirty friends of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Noorda, at their new home on Newport avenue, Wednesday evening. A social time, with some of the friends playing cards, followed the supper. The Noorda's were duly congratulated on their commodious new residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. Bowerman of Hollywood were callers at the News office Tuesday and visitors at the Hartvisen home. Mr. Bowerman was president of the First National bank and did an extensive farm loan business at St. Anthony, Idaho, when we were younger. He and Mrs. Bowerman were also guests at our wedding, June 16, 1910. We were mighty glad to have them honor us with a short visit.

AMERICANA

By Ellsworth Floyd Whalen

From time to time, the American press delights in presenting the possibilities of a war between the United States and Japan. Citizens in our nation become easily alarmed over rumors that Japan is building up a huge army and navy to attack us in the very near future. Even little children attending grammar school seem to have an intuition that Japan is something to be feared, perhaps that feeling has come about from fireside talks of their parents when Japan was painted up as a terrible monster ready to destroy civilization with her gigantic armaments. There is one thing worth remembering in this situation; as long as we gloat over the probabilities of our having a war with any certain foreign power, the easier it will be to create such a war. After all, wars are created; they just do not "happen."

The American Soap Box Derby for boys from 9 to 12 and 12 to 15 years of age, is one of the finest contests offered our youth of today. Every little fellow building his "racer" had a definite goal in mind; that goal was success and the national championship at Akron, Ohio. Of course all the boys can not win first place in the finals, but every boy had an opportunity, and still has, to learn to be a good loser which is an asset to anybody at any time. There is nothing finer than accomplishing a task with your own work and initiative, it creates self-satisfaction. More contests of this nature should be offered to our American boys, it keeps their minds and bodies busy on healthy occupations and stimulates personal initiative.

Now that Ethiopia has finally been conquered by Italy, perhaps we can give more of our attention to our own national affairs, which should be first in our minds at all times. There was nothing startling about Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. There were many Americans who believe "everything they read in the newspapers, ready to tell you that Italy could never conquer Ethiopia. However; modern weapons for extermination of human lives, the best science has invented, coupled with superior man-power, easily decided that Italy would conquer Ethiopia long before the American press thought it possible. Never believe everything you read in the newspaper unless you want to become narrow-minded.

Just what is going to happen after the big "boom" is over, is something a large number of skilled aircraft workers may well ask of themselves. With Government orders for aircraft well up in the millions, Southern California airplane manufacturers are wending their way to prosperity along a rather indefinite path. Within the next two or three years, our national defense in the air may be adequate enough to cause a huge decrease in the expenditures for military aircraft with a corresponding decrease in employment of workers in aircraft factories. The problem is a serious one and deserves careful consideration by the United States Department of Labor.

To those who are considering a trip up California's coast highway number 101, be sure and visit the Pinnacles National Monument in San Benito county. Here is one of the strangest rock formations created by nature. Rising high in the air, are strange grotesque-shaped rocks surrounded by trees and beautiful scenery beyond words of description. Guides will show you through a huge cave one-quarter of a mile in width. Waterfalls can be seen in the cave along with other odd attractions that somehow reminds you of another world. Camp grounds are provided, and for a pleasant week or so in beautiful surroundings, the Pinnacles National Monument is an ideal vacation spot.

The writer holds no admiration for schools and colleges that buy the services of football players. It is certainly too bad that a game we all admire so much has to be played by scores of "bought" players. Once played for the glory of the game, the game is now played for so much per month on a financial basis. Youth is becoming more and more impressed with the idea that football represents a scholarship to college and a snap course for four years—and the impression is correct.

A jeweled snuff box, presented to Jenny Lind, the Swedish Nightingale by Queen Victoria, is now on display at California's Exposition in San Diego.

Fashion shows are given weekly in the Edna Kirby Glass House at the San Diego Exposition.
